As to all grounds on which you have previously exhausted state court remedies, you should set them forth in this petition if you wish to seek federal relief. If you fail to set forth all such grounds in this petition, you may be barred from presenting them at a later date.

For your information, the following is a list of the most frequently raised grounds for relief in habeas corpus proceedings. Each statement preceded by a letter constitutes a separate ground for possible relief. You may raise any grounds which you may have other than those listed if you have exhausted all your state court remedies with respect to them. However, you should raise in this petition all available grounds (relating to this conviction) on which you base your allegations that you are being held in custody unlawfully.

If you select one or more of these grounds for relief, you must allege facts in support of the ground or grounds which you choose. Do not check any of the grounds listed below. The petition will be returned to you if you merely check (a) through (j) or any one of these grounds.

- (a) Conviction obtained by plea of guilty which was unlawfully induced or not made voluntarily with understanding of the nature of the charge and the consequences of the plea.
- (b) Conviction obtained by use of coerced confession.

MEMORANDUM

CR-05-0980

Covington Circuit Court CC-78-26.63

Debra Bracewell v. State of Alabama

WISE, Judge.

The appellant, Debra Bracewell, appeals from the circuit court's dismissal of her petition for postconviction relief, filed pursuant to Rule 32, Ala.R.Crim.P., in which she attacked her December 1981 conviction for capital murder and her resulting sentence of life imprisonment without the possibility of parole. On May 31, 1983, this Court affirmed her conviction and sentence. Bracewell v. State, 447 So. 2d 815 (Ala.Crim.App. 1983).<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup>Bracewell was originally convicted and sentenced to death but the United States Supreme Court vacated this conviction

On or about October 13, 1999, Bracewell filed a habeas corpus petition which the trial court treated as a Rule 32 petition and dismissed. The record does not reveal that Bracewell appealed from the dismissal of her petition. Early in 2001, Bracewell mailed several letters and motions to the trial court wherein she made various allegations that she claimed entitled her to relief. On May 17, 2001, the trial court treated these letters and motions as a Rule 32 petition, which it dismissed on September 13, 2002.

On November 2, 2005, Bracewell filed the instant petition wherein she alleged, as best as we can determine, that her sentence is illegal because, she said, she was convicted of murder, not capital murder. On December 20, 2005, the State filed a motion to dismiss wherein it argued that Bracewell's petition was both without merit and precluded from relief.<sup>2</sup> On January 9, 2006, the trial court issued an order dismissing Bracewell's petition. This appeal followed.

On appeal, Bracewell reasserts the claim argued in the brief filed in support of her petition and abandons those claims checked in the petition.<sup>3</sup> and remanded it for further proceedings. Bracewell v. Alabama, 449 U.S. 915. At her retrial, Bracewell was convicted again and sentenced to life imprisonment with the possibility of parole. This conviction and sentence were affirmed by this Court and the Alabama Supreme Court. Ex parte Bracewell, 447 So. 2d 827 (Ala. 1984).

<sup>2</sup>In her petition, Bracewell checked boxes for the following claims: (1) that the United States and Alabama constitutions require a new trial because of a coerced confession and denial of effective assistance of counsel; (2) that her sentence exceeds that authorized by law; and (3) that the petitioner failed to appeal within the proscribed time and that failure was not the petitioner's fault. Although these items were checked, they were not discussed in her brief in support of the petition.

<sup>3</sup>Those claims that Bracewell presented to the trial court but fails to argue on appeal are deemed abandoned. Brownlee v. State, 666 So. 2d 91, 93 (Ala.Crim.App. 1995).

Bracewell contends that her conviction and sentence is illegal because, she says, she was charged with murder, not capital murder. The trial court's order of dismissal stated:

"It is a matter of record that Ms. Bracewell was in fact charged and tried in her underlying criminal case for capital murder. A copy of the indictment is attached hereto as Exhibit "A." That indictment clearly charges a capital offense. Further, a copy of the actual jury verdict from the guilt phase reads as follows: "We, the jury, find the Defendant guilty of the capital offense charged in the indictment." In view of the foregoing facts, and the appellate decisions from the time recognizing defendant's conviction to be a capital one [See, e.g., Bracewell v. State, 447 So. 2d 815, 817-818 (Ala.Crim.App. 1983)], there is no question that defendant was actually convicted of capital murder.

"That being the situation, the sentence meted out, life without parole, was a proper one. Therefore, the contentions listed in the heading numbered "1" above are due to be dismissed."

(C. 23.) Our record supports the circuit court's determination that Bracewell was charged with and convicted of capital murder, and that her claim lacked merit. Accordingly, dismissal of Bracewell's petition was proper, and we adopt the circuit court's order as part of this memorandum opinion.

The record further reveals that this claim has been raised and addressed in a previous Rule 32 proceeding. (C. 22-23.) As a result, this claim is precluded from relief by Rule 32.2(a)(4), Ala.R.Crim.P. See Barger v. State, 895 So. 2d 385, 286 (Ala.Crim.App. 2004), by Rule 32.2(b), because this is Bracewell's third petition, and by Rule 32.2(c) because Bracewell's petition was filed long after the period of limitations. Additionally, we note that Bracewell's allegations fail to comply with Rule 28(a)(10), Ala.R.App.P., as she has failed to cite to any authority in support of her contentions. Scott v. State, 917 So. 2d 159, 164 (Ala.Crim.App. 2005).

Rule 32.7(d), Ala.R.Crim.P., authorizes the trial court to summarily dismiss a petitioner's Rule 32 petition:

"[i]f the court determines that the petition is not sufficiently specific, or is precluded, or fails to state a claim, or that no material issue of fact or law exists which would entitle the petitioner to relief under this rule and that no purpose would be served by any further proceedings, the court may either dismiss the petition or grant leave to file an amended petition."

See also Hannon v. State, 861 So. 2d 426, 427 (Ala.Crim.App. 2003); Cogman v. State, 852 So. 2d 191, 193 (Ala.Crim.App. 2002); Tatum v. State, 607 So. 2d 383, 384 (Ala.Crim.App. 1992). As discussed above, Bracewell's claims were precluded from appellate review. Thus, summary disposition was appropriate.

Based on the foregoing, the judgment of the trial court is affirmed.

AFFIRMED.

McMillan, P.J., concurs. Cobb, Baschab, and Shaw, JJ., concur in the result.
